• Thomas: I don't have any new information. Do you have? • Lola: I was in contact with some girl from Italy. I offered my help. She contacted Marco, but Marco refused as he was a CoA member and involved in the corruption case. I may now try to get into contact after the ruling. Shall I do that?

History

#1 - 01/17/2012 07:11 PM - Lola Voronina

PP-IT, the member of PPI was found in 2006.

There are a few Pirate movements in Italy.

Fronte dei Pirati – another movement in Italy, possible that in future they will join PP-IT.

South Tyrol PP, the German speaking community in Italy. Nobody there would vote for Italian PP. It's like Spain and Catalonia. They collaborate. For example South Tyrol helped PP-IT with translation the liquid feedback to Italian from German.

One of the members of the second PP-IT, is a member of a Private copying levy (tax on recording systems commission) in Italy. They are actually not pirates but they want to use the popular name. They are not against copyright for example and they don't share pirate values.

The PP-IT is ordinary member of PPI and those guys are not, they are not even going to apply for observer membership.

They might have the advantage in collecting signatures for the registration because some of their members are civil officers and can verify the signatures fast.

PP-IT applied to the Court for the misuse of the name Pirate Party, and not for trademark issues as Samir told us. PP-IT is trying to prevent them from registering the trademark in Italy. PP-IT requested the Court to prevent the "other" pirate party to attempt to register the pirate sign. And PP-IT are not interested in registering it.

Statement from PPI that PP-IT is a member and pirateparty.it is not. And that they are not sharing the core values of Pirate movement. In the form of the article on PPI web page will be sufficient. The first hearing in the court is 29 of February. So will be great if we can publish the statement till the end of January. And I asked Marco to translate for me the program statements of the both parties so we can compare them in our statement and show who is the real pirate here.

who is in favour of an article on the webpage stating out, that PP-IT (<http://www.partito-pirata.it>) is a Member of PPI and shares our values and that other "so called" other pirate party in Italy (using the domain pirateparty.it) are not part of the PP movement, nor do we consider the latter being even close to it.

Agreed. Lola to write the article.
